SUPPORT

LA Opera’s presentation of anatomy theater is made possible by a generous grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.
Additional support from the National Endowment for the Arts and from donors to LA Opera’s Contemporary Opera Initiative, chaired by Nancy and Barry Sanders, with underwriting gifts from Laura Donnelley and Kiki and David Gindler.
A NOTE FROM THE CREATORS

No singers were harmed in the creation of this opera.

It seems like an odd statement to make about an entertainment, but it is definitely appropriate to make it, since our piece is so full of terrifying things. Crime and punishment, execution, dissection, the thin line that separates moralistic cruelty from dispassionate scientific inquiry—they are all there.

anatomy theater is an opera of villains. There are no lovers, no peacemakers, no heroes in shining armor coming to the rescue. All the characters in our opera are dangerous.

The subject of our opera is a gruesome one—the public dissection of the body of a murderer, in order to find the physical seat of her moral corruption. Set loosely in the early years of the 18th century, the opera mashes up some of the more shockingly pernicious ideas from the history of medicine. It should come as no surprise that the history of anatomy and the history of medicine in general—as well as the history of opera itself—are well stocked with attitudes of misogyny and contempt for the poor. anatomy theater’s libretto closely follows the ideas, methods, manners and even some of the surviving documents of early medical thought.

For much of the history of anatomical inquiry the only bodies available for dissection were those of executed convicts, and, after 1752, exclusively murderers. It was genuinely thought that the anatomy of evil people was different from that of law-abiding citizens, that their evil was written on their organs, and that specialists could identify the differences and demonstrate them publicly. This made public dissections a kind of moral carnival, in which upstanding citizens could literally look down on the flawed remains of evildoers. It is also true that the act of anatomical examination was understood clearly as an additional punishment that could be meted out beyond the death of the convict.

Female cadavers were very rare. In fact, when Vesalius, the preeminent anatomist of the 16th century, posed for the frontispiece of his De Humani Corporis Fabrica (1543) he braagingly made Jan Stephen van Calcar depict him dissecting a woman’s body. In England, the Anatomy Act of 1832 put a stop to grave robbing and the illicit trade in corpses but it allowed anatomists access to unclaimed bodies from prisons, poor houses and charity hospitals, forever linking the teaching of dissection with poverty, criminality and powerlessness.

UNDERWRITER RECOGNITION

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation

LA Opera’s presentation of anatomy theater has been made possible by a generous grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. For nearly 15 years, the Foundation has supported Plácido Domingo’s artistic vision for LA Opera as an innovator in this art form, igniting the creation of many new operas. The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, which has a long tradition of promoting ground-breaking projects, has helped LA Opera expand the repertoire by mounting operas by contemporary composers and by commissioning new works. Its current support for LA Opera includes three seasons of innovative multi-media productions co-presented with Beth Morrison Projects at REDCAT: last season’s Dog Days and the current season’s presentations of Song from the Uproar and anatomy theater. Generous support from the Foundation in past years has provided important funding for many new productions, including A Streetcar Named Desire, Il Postino, The Fly, Grendel and Nicholas and Alexandra.

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation is a major international contributor to arts and humanities, supporting path-breaking work by exceptional institutions of higher learning, music, and visual and performing arts.

LA Opera is proud to partner with The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation to strengthen and promote ambitious contributions to the art form, fulfilling the company’s mission of bringing innovative opera to Los Angeles.

National Endowment for the Arts

The National Endowment for the Arts is a public agency dedicated to supporting excellence in the arts, providing arts access for all Americans and improving arts education in our schools. An independent agency of the federal government, the Endowment is the nation’s largest annual funder of the arts.

For more than 20 years, the NEA has helped LA Opera bring new and original productions to Los Angeles, while also supporting the company’s Education and Community Engagement programs. Recent projects include support for The Ghosts of Versailles, Billy Budd, Albert Herring, Il Postino, The Fly and Grendel. Support from the NEA has also made possible the company’s annual free productions at the Cathedral of Our Lady of the Angels, including the 2014 commissioning of Jonah and the Whale. Under the leadership of Chairman Jane Chu, the NEA is committed to fostering America’s creativity and investing in our living cultural heritage. Promoting lifelong arts education and improving access to the arts for all citizens, the NEA is strengthening the core of the American democratic spirit, forging new cultural partnerships and building more livable communities.

CREATIVE TEAM

David Lang
Composer / Co-Librettist
David Lang received the Pulitzer Prize in 2008 for his piece the little match girl passion, commissioned by Carnegie Hall for the vocal ensemble Theatre of Voices (Paul Hillier, artistic director). His work is regularly performed by major music, dance, opera and theatrical organizations throughout the world. Recent works include the concerto man made for the ensemble So Percussion and a consortium of orchestras including the BBC Symphony and the Los Angeles Philharmonic; mountain for the Cincinnati Symphony; and death speaks, for Shara Worden, Bryce Dessner, Nico Muhly and Owen Pallett, at Carnegie Hall. In 2015 Mr. Lang composed the music for Paolo Sorrentino’s film Youth, for which he received Academy Award, Golden Globe, and Critics Choice nominations, among others. Mr. Lang is professor of music composition at the Yale School of Music and is co-founder and co-artistic director of New York’s legendary music festival Bang on a Can.

Bob McGrath

He has won three OBIE awards for direction, best production and sustained achievement.

Christopher Rountree
Music Director
Christopher Rountree is the founder, conductor and creative director of the LA-based chamber ensemble wild Up. The New York Times named wild Up’s 2015 NYC debut among the top ten classical music events of the year. His 2015/16 season includes debuts with the Chicago Symphony (MusicNOW), Atlanta Opera and Interlochen's World Youth Symphony as part of the NY Philharmonic Biennial, as well as returns the San Francisco Symphony (SoundBox) and Ensemble LPR. In 2015, he premiered 12 of his own compositions and led John Adams’ A Flowering Tree at Opera Omaha. Recent career highlights include engagements with the LA Philharmonic (Green Umbrella), San Diego Symphony, Colorado Symphony, LA Chamber Orchestra, Prototype Festival, American Composers Orchestra and Bohuslav Martinu Philharmonic. He has been tapped to curate events for contemporary art institutions including the Getty Museum, MCA Denver and the Hammer Museum. (RountreeMusic.com)

Mark Dion
Co-Librettist / Set Design
Mark Dion’s work examines the ways in which dominant ideologies and public institutions shape our understanding of history, knowledge and the natural world, questioning the authoritative role of the scientific voice in contemporary society. He has had major exhibitions at the Miami Art Museum, the Museum of Modern Art in New York, Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art in Ridgefield, Connecticut, the Tate Gallery in London, and the British Museum of Natural History in London. He is co-director of Mildred’s Lane, an innovative visual art education and residency program in Beach Lake, Pennsylvania. For over two decades, he has worked in the public realm on a wide range of scales, from architecture projects to print project in newspaper. He produced large scale permanent commissions for Documenta 13 in Kassel, Germany as well as for the Montevideo Biannale in Uruguay, the Olympic Sculpture Park in Seattle, the Rose Art Museum and the Port of Los Angeles.

Peabody Southwell
Sarah Osborne
Recognized for her “stylistic mastery and ripe, sensual sound” (Opera magazine, UK) in repertoire from baroque to modern, mezzo-soprano Peabody Southwell has performed principal roles for Chicago Opera Theater, Carnegie Hall, Seattle Symphony, LA Philharmonic, New World Symphony and San Francisco Symphony and has been conducted by James Conlon, Robert Spano and Michael Tilson Thomas. Her many LA Opera appearances include, most recently, La Ciesca in Gianni Schicchi and the Third Lady in The Magic Flute earlier this season. A champion of new music, she is slated to premiere works for composers Thomas Morse, Nathaniel Stookey and Geoffrey Gordon. Beyond singing, her work as an actor can be seen with Relativity Films and PBS. In addition to performing, she has established herself as a versatile artist in a range of creative endeavors. As co-founder of LA-based production company Chromatic (Chromatic.La) with longtime collaborator James Darrah, she has functioned as a director, designer and dramaturg on works for San Francisco Symphony, LA Philharmonic, Bard Summerscape, Opera Omaha and Opera San Antonio. She maintains private clients in Los Angeles for interior, fashion and lifestyle aesthetics. (PeabodySouthwell.com)

Timur
Ambrose Strang
“The extravagantly transgressive tenor...dangerously seductive” (LA Times) Timur has made solo appearances with LA Philharmonic, Bang on a Can All-Stars, Sarasota Opera, Opera Boston, Townsend Players, Utah Opera, Santa Cecilia Academy, Budapest Palace of the Arts, and the Industry LA, among many others. He has collaborated with many composers, including Thomas Adès, Evan Ziporyn, Silvano Bussotti, David T. Little, Mohammed Fairouz, Anne LeBaron, Gian-Carlo Menotti, Peter Eötvös, Veronika Krausas, Charles Bernstein, Matt Marks, Tobias Picker and Nick Urrata. His band Timur and the Dime Museum has appeared on America’s Got Talent, opened for the Tiger Lillies, DeVotchKa, and collaborated with Klaus Nomi's songwriter Kristian Hoffman. The band appeared at the 2013 Prototype Festival, and in 2014, premiered a rock opera COLLAPSE by Daniel Corral at REDCAT produced by Beth Morrison Projects, and toured to Miami Light Project, Operadagen Rotterdam and BAM 2015 Next Wave Festival. Timur is a co-creator of Silent Stepe Cantata by Anne LeBaron, a large-scale composition about Kazakhstan. His voice is featured on the Hollywood soundtrack of Ruby Sparks and on recordings by Naxos USA, Milan Records, Deutsche Grammophon and ANTi-. He is a faculty member of the California Institute of the Arts. (TheOperaOfTimur.com, TimurAndTheDimeMuseum.com)

wild Up
Instrumental Ensemble
wild Up is a modern music collective; an adventurous chamber orchestra; an LA-based group committed to creating visceral, thought-provoking happenings. The group was founded in 2010 by artistic director and conductor Christopher Rountree. UCLA’s Hammer Museum tapped wild Up as the museum’s first ever Orchestra in Residence. After dozens of concerts there, the LA Times proclaimed the group “Best Classical Music of 2012.” They have been Ensemble in Residence with the LA Chamber Orchestra and played numerous programs with the LA

A NEW CONTEMPORARY OPERA INITIATIVE

LA Opera invites donors to help stage innovative works by contributing to its new Contemporary Opera Initiative. Supporters of this special program help the company move forward with one of its foundational principles: to advance the art form through experimentation and the cultivation of new voices and new visions. These donors, who are invited behind the scenes to meet the creative teams, help LA Opera present adventurous programming like anatomy theater as well as the coming season’s Off Grand productions of The Source by Ted Hearne and Thumbprint by Kamala Sankaram. For more information about the benefits offered to Contemporary Opera Initiative donors, please contact Janneke Straub at 213.972.7665 or jstraub@LAOpera.org.

Beth Morrison Projects
Founded in 2006, Beth Morrison Projects encourages risk-taking, creating a structure for developing new work that is unique to each artist, which gives them the time and space to experiment and push boundaries. Noted as a composers’ producer, “Beth Morrison, of Beth Morrison Projects, has been gathering strength for several years, producing some of the most exciting music-theatre projects in the city” (The New Yorker). To date, the company has commissioned, developed, and produced more than forty premiere opera and music-theatre works that have been performed around the globe. The New York Times recently said “The production of new [opera] works in the city still falls mostly to the tireless Beth Morrison and her Beth Morrison Projects.” The Wall Street Journal wrote “Ms. Morrison may be immortalized one day as a 21st-century Diaghilev, known for her ability to assemble memorable collaborations among artists.” Current and upcoming projects include works by composers: Darcy James Argue, Mohammed Fairouz, Du Yun, Ted Hearne, David Lang, David T. Little, Zhou Long, Keeril Makan, Missy Mazzoli, Paola Prestini, Kamala Sankaram, Scott Wheeler and more.

BMP receives funding from the National Endowment of the Arts, New York State Council on the Arts with the support of Governor Andrew Cuomo and the New York State Legislature, the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs in Partnership with the City Council, The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, New Music USA, the Emma A.
